Lt. General Joseph F. Carroll
Director, Defense Intelligence Agency
Department of Defense
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Joe:

In confirmation of our discussions this morning in Secretary McNamara's office, I believe it most important that you, in completing the organization of DIA, take full advantage of all facilities and services established at CIA and hence available to you.

I am sure you are generally familiar with CIA's organization and the scope of its activities; however it occurred to me that you may not be thoroughly familiar with certain operations which might be of importance to you. I am thinking of areas of technical intelligence gathering, analysis, evaluation and dissemination as well as research conducted in these fields. I therefore propose that you, at your convenience, review the Central Intelligence Agency organization and activities, either personally or through your Staff, so that you can plan to make maximum use of the facilities available to you.

As you will note, I am directing a copy of this letter to General Carter and, in doing so, suggesting that he discuss the subject of this letter with you at your early convenience.
